Collingswood to Provide Detour
While Haddon Avenue Is Being Paved

HELPS ZONE FARE FIGHT

At a public meeting last night before the borough commissioners of Collingswood more than 100 automobile owners presented petitions asking that Park avenue be temporarily repaired to provide a detour for motorists and jitneys in the fight on the zone fare system. Immediately after the petition was presented the commissioners met and granted the request. Work will be started at once.

Haddon avenue, the chief highway from Camden to Haddonfield, is in a deplorable condition. Recently a contract totaling upward of $250,000 was awarded for the repaving of the entire length of the thoroughfare from Camden line to Westmont.

Almost Impassable
The street is almost impassable. With the influx of jitneys and motor buses since the introduction of the zone fare system on the trolleys, motorcar owners have found it almost impossible to travel over the street.

To make conditions worse the municipal authorities notified all the public utilities companies that all underground work must be done at once to prevent reopening of the street after the paving work is started.

Wires Underground
Telephone and telegraph wires are being placed underground, additional sewer inlets and water lines are being laid and other similar work is going on. This leaves the highway in a worse condition than before.

Park avenue, the paralleling street, is paved with macadam for a large part of its length. The newer section running into Camden, however, is an open clay road, filled with deep ruts. This section running from Browning road to City Line avenue will be scraped and leveled, so that it can be used until Haddon avenue is paved.

Deaths of a Day

S. P. HUHN DIES AT SHORE

Widely Known Banker and Clubman Succumbs After Long Illness
Samuel Parham Huhn, a member of the Philadelphia banking firm of George A. Huhn & Sons and a widely known clubman, died yesterday at the Atlantic City Hospital.

Mr. Huhn, who was forty-six years old, had been ill all summer. He became critically ill Sunday night at his summer home, 106 South Harvard avenue, Ventnor, and was hurried to the hospital. Intestinal trouble was the cause of his death.

Mr. Huhn was the son of George A. Huhn and was admitted to the Philadelphia Stock Exchange in 1906. His brothers, who were associated with him in the firm, are George A. Huhn, Jr., of New York, and William P. H. Huhn, of this city, the latter a noted polo player. Prior to their marriage his wife was Miss Marie Louise Bell, daughter of Mr. J. P. Bell, a member of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange. There are four children, John J., George A., Jr., Samuel P., Jr., and Marie Louise Huhn. During the war two of the sons, John and George, were in the army aviation service.

His father, his wife, his two brothers, his sister and his children were at the hospital with him at the time of his death. Mrs. Florence Huhn Walsh, his sister, who lives in Overbrook, hurried to Atlantic City when news was received of her brother's illness.

Among the clubs of which Mr. Huhn was an active member are the Union League, the Racquet Club, Merion Cricket Club and the Philadelphia Country Club.

Mrs. Harry Gallagher
Following an operation Mrs. Anna C. Gallagher, wife of Dr. Harry Gallagher, died yesterday at her home, 201 North Ninth street, Chester. She was widely known as a school teacher and social worker. At one time she was principal of the school at the Girls' Home of Refuge in this city and also served as principal of the Sharon Hill public school.

Joseph Justice
Joseph Justice, who for many years was united with the Pennsylvania Railroad freight department, died yesterday at the Ivan Apartments, Forty-seventh street and Baltimore avenue. Mr. Justice had been ill four months. Several years ago, when he reached the age of seventy, he was placed on the Pennsylvania Railroad retired list. He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Ella F.

CHEW YOUR MILK? YES, DO, FOR CHO-CHO SAYS YOU MUST

Eat Cabbage and Onions, Too, if You Boys and Girls Want to Be Healthy Men and Women, He Urges

Here's the latest—you must chew your milk!
And scrub your teeth up and down—and your tongue crosswise.
And if you ever expect to be a doctor or a lawyer, or perhaps a real clown, you must start early in life to eat boiled cabbage and onions!

That's what Cho-Cho says, and he knows what it means to be a really, truly circus clown, and win medals and other prizes for running and jumping. So sure is Cho-Cho that America must lead the world by the good health of her people, that, after retiring from the sawdust, he still wears his wonderful clown suit and whitens his face and puts comical red lines on it and goes about telling school children how to become strong, and big, and good-looking. It was funny and sad to see Cho-Cho weep because almost all the children in South Philadelphia drink tea or coffee. He rubbed his fists into his eyes to keep back the tears and just about bent double as he groaned his anguish. "It's a terrible thing to drink coffee!"

Cabbage and Onions? Ah-h-h
But you should have seen him smile when he saw the unanimous vote in favor of boiled cabbage and stewed onions. He laughed and laughed and the children could hardly contain themselves with mirth.

"That's fine! Cabbage is good for children. And if you want to grow to be big and be a great lawyer or a doctor you must eat food that's good for you." And then he started to unpack a market basket and held up everything in it, as he asked the children in the South Philadelphia High School, last night, whether they liked beans and tomatoes and a lot of other things.

"Cabbage?" asked Cho-Cho.
"Ah-h-h," sighed the children at the thought.
"Onions?"
"Oo-oo-oo," and mouths began to water.
"Apples?"
"Wee-ee."
"They are all good for children."
"Tomatoes?"

Justice, and a son, Dr. Crawford T. Justice.

William A. Stanton
Word was received by Governor Sproul at Harrisburg that William A. Stanton, vice president of the General Refractories Company, had died suddenly Monday, of heart disease, in a hospital in London. Mr. Stanton sailed from New York on September 18 on a business trip. He was about fifty-three years old and had been very active in the firebrick business for many years. He was a son of the late M. Hall Stanton, of Philadelphia, and was widely known in the steel trade over the country.

William M. Yeaton
William M. Yeaton, a life insurance agent with offices in the Bullitt Building, died at his home, 334 Manheim street, Germantown, yesterday, after a short illness. He was born in Camden seventy years ago and settled in Philadelphia when a young man. He enlisted at the outbreak of the Civil War and entered the sea future business upon being mustered out. Mr. Yeaton, who is survived by two sisters, was a member of Post 2, Grand Army of the Republic, and belonged to several Masonic fraternities.

William R. Beers
Philadelphia, N. J., Sept. 30.—Former Mayor William R. Beers, Philadelphia's oldest resident, died in his home yesterday, his ninety-first birthday anniversary. For fifty-seven years he was chief claim agent for the Central Railroad of New Jersey and was formerly cashier of the Philadelphia National Bank.

More Than Forty Different Kinds of Rugs and Other Floor Coverings Priced to Our Customers' Advantage

CONDITIONS are such in the Rug and Carpet manufacturing centres that the plain announcement that we have a very large stock and that our prices are based upon production costs far below the lowest now prevailing, should be the strongest possible reason for BUYING ALL YOU NEED AND BUYING AT THIS STORE.

When we tell you that not a single line of Rugs in our stock could be re-ordered at a price as low as we paid, and that not a single line of Rugs has been reprinted to accord with the higher quotations of to-day—the prices we would have to pay to replace these lines—we need say nothing further to convince you that OUR PRICES ARE GREATLY TO YOUR ADVANTAGE.

We do not advise you to buy beyond your needs; but as merchants who have won the confidence of the public, who prize above all else the continued good-will of our customers, and who are thoroughly conversant with present conditions and the future outlook—we do assure you that it WILL NOT PAY TO DEFER the buying of Floor Coverings to a later date.

Reduction Sale of 20,000 Pairs of Gloves

More Than Twenty Different Lots, for Men, Women and Children at an Average Saving of More Than One-third—Many at Half Price

For a number of years past we have planned Special Sales of Gloves in October, each of which has proved a memorable event. The Sale beginning to-morrow shall be equally notable—in fact, more important in some ways than in former years, as we have decided to reduce our large stock quickly by marking thousands of pairs from various STANDARD LINES at reductions of one-third to one-half; and while Gloves cost more to produce than last year, these prices are lower than in last year's sale:
